Our team of specialists has extensive experience of managing academies at all stages of the conversion process and after, drawing upon 14 years' experience in school governance positions, 9 years' as chair of finance and 10 years' experience in practice acting for schools, in addition to charities and finance director roles in not for profit companies.

What is an Academy?

Running an Academy is very different to operating within the Local Authority's structure.

Origin of Academies

The Labour government launched its Academy programme in March 2000, in order to replace under-performing schools. These 'old' Academies required external sponsorship.

Coalition government changes

Since 2010 the Government made it easier to set up schools outside local authority control, which effectively gives schools their freedom.

The new Academy schools are established under the Academies Act 2010 and are set up as a company limited by guarantee. The articles of association define the Academy as an 'Academy Trust', with the trust being responsible for the running and controlling of the Academy assets and land.

New Academies - what you need to know

They:

- Cannot charge for admission or attendance
- Have the freedom to work outside LA control
- Set their own pay scales, conditions, Curriculum and term & day lengths

“The conversion process has been simplified and typically takes around 3 months”

What is different about New Academies?

The education sector is becoming increasingly complex, but what are the differences?

Old style versus new style Academies

The education sector is becoming increasingly complex, but what are the differences?

Old style versus new style Academies

The old style Academies were set up under the Education Act 1996 and required external sponsorship.

They were effectively aimed at schools that underperformed.

New style Academies are established under the Academies Act 2010 and initially only schools with an Ofsted rating as 'Outstanding' could apply.

Those schools that did not have an 'Outstanding' rating would partner with a school that had an outstanding rating or obtain a sponsor.

However, during 2011 the rating required to convert was changed and now schools that are seen as improving have the chance to become an Academy, without a partner or sponsor.

Academies versus independent schools

- Academies receive public funding from the State, under a contractual relationship termed a funding agreement
- Academies still have an admissions policy but cannot charge fees
- An Academy has no contractual relationship with the students' parents

The conversion Process

Since 2010 the conversion process is much simpler and a time-scale of three months to convert is usually achievable if there are no complicating factors.

The conversion process consists of a number of stages, some of which run concurrently -

- Preparation
- Consultation
- Application by governing body
- The Academy Order
- Notification
- Completion of the commercial arrangements, including forming the company
- Registration requirements
- Other issues

Preparation and consultation

The key to a trouble-free conversion to Academy status is to ensure that you are fully prepared and have been through the consultation process.

The consultation should include anyone you feel to be appropriate, but an indication of relevant people would be:

- The Local Authority
- Parents

- Teachers
- Governors
- External professionals

The consultation process can take place at any point before or after the Academy Order has been made, but the Order will not be completed until this process is completed.

The conversion Process

The conversion will flow much more quickly and easily if you involve people familiar with the process.

Application and the Academy Order

Once the application has been submitted an enabling document will be given to the school by the Secretary of State.

For all schools classed as outstanding by Ofsted, this should be obtained as a matter of course, unless exceptional circumstances apply. However, you MAY expect:

- A review to ensure there have been no changes since your last Ofsted review
- A review of your budget deficit
- A visit by Ofsted

Speaking to us for assistance with the preparation of budgets, should help confirm the viability of the Academy. This should be done at the consultation process.

Notification, completion and registration

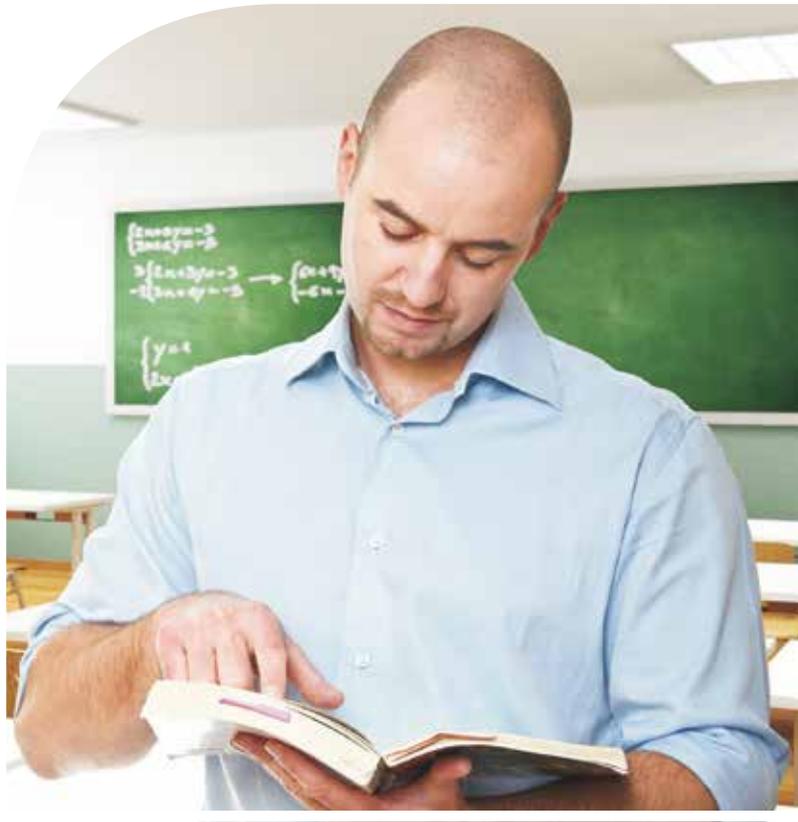

Once the Academy Order has been processed, then you will need to notify the relevant parties, including:

- Governors
- Teachers

- Local Authority
- Your legal team

Your legal team will then go through the process of setting up the Academy and ensuring nothing has been overlooked and, where required, all contracts and agreements are transferred across to the Academy.

This task is very onerous and using people that have already been through the process will ensure that nothing is missed and everything is in order.

The Issues

Schools that rush into setting up as Academies without the expertise or knowledge of the issues are the ones who encounter problems along the way.

Seeking professional advice and guidance makes all the difference.

The conversion process has already been discussed very briefly and there is much more detail which will require consideration. This is also true about the issues that face Academies after conversion.

A summary of the main issues faced by nearly all Academies include:

- Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) regulations (TUPE)
- Transfer agreements
- Potential staff pension scheme deficits
- Property issues and ownership
- Budget setting for the school
- Changes to financial systems and new procedures
- VAT
- Alterations to governance rules

Will TUPE regulations give you the freedom you want?

What will the schools pension deficit be?

What assets will transfer?

These are the types of questions you should be asking yourself and they should be raised as part of your consultation process, but this is not an exhaustive list and this is why you should seek professional advice. We can offer advice in respect of detailed financial problems and queries and also help with a number of the non-financial issues.

How We can help

With our detailed knowledge and experience we can help all Academies, from those that need guidance through the application process, to those that are already up-and-running.

Our services include:
